ABOUT

California

is told in a beautifully illustrated book, entitled "To California and Back." Ask James L. Watson, P. & T. A., Atchison, Kansas, for a copy. It is free.

Personally-conducted weekly parties leave Chicago every Saturday evening, and Kansas City every Sunday noon, for Pacific Coast, via Santa Fe Route. Special agents and porters in attendance. Pullman tourist sleepers are used, furnished with all conveniences for comfortable traveling. Second-class tickets included.

You have been planning that fall trip for several years. Why not go now and take advantage of the early season? It is the only time when the weather is just what you need, and the prices are low. Write to J. L. Watson, P. & T. A., Atchison, Mo., for a copy of the "To California and Back" book.

French & Hahnenkratt, THE HARDWARE DEALERS.

From the Topeka Mail and Breeze.

The New Election Law.

There is one law passed by the late legislature which bears the impress of fairness, and which will operate as a decided improvement on the law now in force on the subject. It is the Australian ballot law. The changes in the old are many and, in the opinion of the Mail, are changes for the better, although there is probably room for much more improvement.

The new ballot law applies in all general and special elections in political sub-divisions larger than a school district. In order to secure a place on the official ballot at a general election the convention nominating a ticket must represent a party that cast not less than five per cent of the total vote polled in the state at the last preceding general election. This, of course will bar the prohibition party from occupying a place on the ballot at the next election. But the law permits a candidate or a set of candidates a place on the ballot when nomination papers are filed which are signed by not less than 2,500 qualified voters when the election is a general one. Even then the prohibition party will have to do some tall hustling and secure additional converts, for the party only cast 2,247 votes at the last general election. In county elections the same rule applies, except that five per cent of the qualified voters at the preceding election, must sign the nomination papers of each candidate and in no case must the number of signers be less than twenty-five voters.

Another good provision of the law is, that the tickets shall be arranged on the ballot in the order of the number of votes received by each party at the last preceding election, the party receiving the highest vote taking first place, the next highest second place, and so on, the tickets placed on by nomination papers following in the order of the number of signers received by each.

No provision is made for the publication of the ballots in the official papers or other papers, and the price paid for ballots is limited. In even numbered years the price paid for ballots is not to exceed $10 per thousand, or fraction thereof, if there be not more than four tickets on the ballot, and $150 per thousand is allowed for each additional ticket. In odd numbered years $5 per thousand is allowed for printing ballots where there are not more than four tickets, and $1 extra for each additional ticket. Each precinct is allowed 75 ballots for every 50 votes cast at the last preceding election. The expense of printing ballots and other expenses of elections are to be partitioned by the county commissioners among the townships in proportion to the vote cast in each at the preceding election. Judging from the description of the make-up of the ballot and the sample ballot inserted in the law, it is to be a simple affair, devoid of rosters, engines and other party devices and free from all headings except the name of the party at the head of each ticket, printed in capitals at least one quarter of an inch long. At a national election the names of the party nominees for president and vice-president are allowed on in connection with the presidential electors. The little square in which the voter is to make his "X" is switched over to the right of the name of the candidate's name, and public measures are to be voted by affixing an "X" in the square at the right of the "Yes" or "No" following the proposition.

Not more than two judges and one clerk shall belong to the same political party. One judge and one clerk are to be first selected from the party casting the highest vote at the preceding election, one judge and one clerk is next to be selected from the party casting the next highest vote and the remaining judge is to be selected from party casting the third, highest vote, if there is such a party. Vacancies are to be filled in like manner. There will be one booth for every 60 voters, and arranged practically the same as under the present law. A judge clips the corner of a ballot containing the number of a ballot with a pair of scissors before depositing it in the box, unless the vote is challenged. Voters needing assistance to mark ballots shall be accompanied by two judges of different political parties. Intoxication shall not be regarded as a disability and the voter with a "jag on" must mark his own ballot.

All persons entitled to vote are to be allowed two hours on election day during the hours for voting, and are to suffer no deduction of wages for being absent, and any employer hindering them in any way from enjoying this privilege shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not less than $50 nor more than $100 for each offense.

Judges and clerks of elections are to receive $20 for first 250 votes cast, or less, and an additional $1 for each 100 votes or major part thereof in excess of 250, at elections where state, county and township officers are elected.

At all elections where the Australian ballot applies the polls are to be open from 8 o'clock in the morning to 6 o'clock in the evening. Chapter 78 of session laws of 1893, which embodies the present law, is repealed, and the act takes effect when printed in the statute book, and will, therefore be in force at the fall election this year.

Patrons of district 81 spent the last afternoon with Miss Mabel Gould and the children. An agreeable program was presented and all enjoyed the teacher's kind remembrance.

"Topics took a lead pencil and figured out an odd thing the other day. In Kansas there are exactly 81,318 square miles of land. These figures read the same backwards as forwards, which may in a measure account for the ability of Kansas to catch 'em a comin' and a goin'.

There are 52,043,529 acres in Kansas, and if the entire population of the United States were equally distributed over them the people would hardly be in speaking distance of each other. Kansas could furnish every man woman and child in the United States with five-sixths of an acre for a garden spot. Allowing two square feet for each inhabitant the entire population of the state might be assembled on sixty-nine acres of ground. The entire population of Kansas could have stood in one of the World's Fair buildings. Butler, the largest county in Kansas, has more square miles in it than the entire state of Rhode Island."
